ished together, and by their wise system of free education and free press, knowledge was disseminated and the arts and sciences advanced, and the wonderful ingenuity of this people became fruitful of wonders far more astonishing than any of which the alchemists had ever dreamed.

The first difficulty confronting the writer in attempting to write a faithful history of the Carter family, is the consciousness of his inability to write a book. The second is his lack of knowledge of the early life of our ancestors. However, in submitting this bit of history for a family record, we do it with a degree of pleasure as well as a sense of duty to those now living, and to future generations, to aid us and them, in remembering and preserving in better form many names and incidents of home life and loved ones which would otherwise be lost or remembered but imperfectly.

The writer acknowledges grateful appreciation to all those who have assisted in gathering dates for this history. Among those deserving special mention are:

Emma J. Parker, now deceased

Myrtle Martin, of Lynn, Indiana

Hattie Wright, of Fortville, Indiana.

Thomas Carter, who stands as the representative head of this family, and whose life is the genesis of our family history, was an emigrant from Gilford County, North Carolina, in the year 1829. Before leaving that country, however, he had chosen for his life companion Miss Mariam Cartwright, and they had become the parents of four little girls, namely: Rachel, nine years old; Elizabeth, five years old; Mary three years old, and Eliza, one year old, all of whom came with him.

Just how the trip was made we are not informed, but as it pre-dates the steam railroad, the interurban, the bus lines, the automobile, the airplane, or even the modern road-wagon, we can reasonable conclude that they came like hundreds of others came about that time, either in a one horse cart or a two horse tar pole wagon. They pitched their tent, or built their shanty on the banks of White River near the southeast corner of White River township in Randolph County, Indiana. In the deed record in the recorder's office in Winchester the fact is disclosed that Thomas Carter purchased eighty (80) acres in White River township in the year 1832 for the sum of one hundred dollars, and three years later entered forty (40) acres in the same section, being about one-half mile southwest of where the Mount Zion church now stands. We are left uninformed as whether Thomas Carter or his wife left a parent, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, or cousin when they left North Carolina in quest of a new home in the then far west. Presumably the descendants of Thomas Carter and Maria (Cartwright) Carter have many relatives in North Carolina and other states to whom they are entire strangers.

In the years that followed their immigration there were born to them seven other children, namely: Lucinda, an unnamed infant, Jane, Margaret, Hannah Marie, Mariam, and an only son Thomas Wesley. The last named was born in 1836 and we have it traditionally that his father died when he was two years old or in 1838, nine years after coming to this new country.

No one living knows just where the remains of this paternal pioneer is resting. Some have thought that it might be in one of the numerous old cemeteries in Winchester, but inasmuch as he had lived and died near Mount Zion, and others, including some of his children had been buried there prior to his death, and his wife and other members of his family were buried there shortly after his death, there is every reason in the writer's mind to believe that his body rests in an unmarked grave in the Mt. Zion cemetery.

On the demise of Thomas Carter, his widow, Mariam Carter now becomes the heroine of this narrative. Being left at the age of thirty-four, with ten children, she bravely assumed the responsibilities of managing the farms and the rearing of the family. Either of these duties would be considered a Herculean task even in this day, but when considered in the light of the then new and sparsely settled country, with no roads, no markets, no schools, all alone, with no means of communication with or transportation to a relative on earth, together with the innumerable other hardships incidental to pioneer life we are frank to say she possessed more courage and a braver heart than many of her descendants. Yet we have it traditionally from those who remember her best that she was always of a cheerful and hopeful disposition, and gave to her children such practical education as was obtainable, and that she always took her neatly clad children to church on Sundays and that they invariably sat together occupying one seat or bench. We can never know what the intensity of her mental and physical struggles were during those dark and trying days, but the story is briefly told in the fact that ten years was the limit of its endurance. Death came to her relief on June 5, 1848, when she was forty-four years of age.

This brief sketch discloses all we know of the history of our first parents. It can truthfully be said however, to their everlasting credit, that all of their children who grew to manhood and womanhood, though left orphans early in life, in a new and sparsely settled country, with no relative to counsel or advise, and no means of support save with their own hands were always regarded among the most intelligent, religious and industrious people of their day and generation, and proved themselves to be of good parentage and worthy examples for future generations.

January 28, 1925

The writer this day visited the only person living, (so far as he knows) who was personally acquainted with our Grandmother Marian Carter, and her family of children, after the death of Thomas Carter.

This aged and highly respected lady is the widow of Samuel Rockhill, and the daughter of Jacob and Susan Fudge, who lived for many years two and a half miles south of where the Carter family lived. Lucinda (Fudge) Rock-ill will be ninety years old her next birthday April 25). She was past 13 years of age when Grandmother Carter died, or about the age of the youngest daughter, Mariam Carter (Mullen).

She has a very vivid recollection of the Carter family and gave us our only information in regard to our Grandmother's physique. She remembers her as being rather tall and slender, very straight, with long dark hair, red cheeks, with a good looking and pleasant countenance. The principal modes of travel in her day was either on foot or horseback and Grandmother Carter was very proficient in both arts.

We now proceed to give in order a brief history of the children of Thomas and Mariam Carter who married and reared families. In doing so, however, we are constantly reminded that this sketch is simply, and in an informal way, intended to preserve such names, dates of births, deaths, marriages and other facts in family history as may be thought to be of general interest to the generations following.

Rachel, the firstborn, grew to womanhood in the vicinity where the Mount Zion church is now located. She assisted her widowed mother in making a living for and in the rearing of the younger children. She was married to Isi Henderson Murray, a man who towered strength and intelligence and was a recognized leader in community affairs. To this union was born two children; Robert H., born March 22, 1853, and Mary, who died in early childhood. The husband and father died at the home near Deerfield in Randolph County, Indiana, in August 1860. The widow and mother was married several years later to James Miller, but died a widow near the place of her birth in the year 1877 and was buried at Mount Zion. She had spent a life of 57 years among the scenes of nature and in sweet communion with nature's God.

Elizabeth Carter grew to womanhood at her mother's home and at the age of 20 years she was married to John Tisor, a young farm boy, son of Austin and Susannah Tisor recently from Ohio. Their marriage occurred on March 21, 1844. In the years that followed this couple became the proud and happy parents of four sons and one daughter, namely William R., Thomas H., Mary M., Enos M. and Allen A. These parents were very industrious and successful farmers, taught the children to be industrious, gave them a good education for their day, and left them a substantial stantial inheritance. They spent their entire married life in Randolph County. Elizabeth departed this life October 24, 1892, and her husband followed a few years later. Both were buried in Mount Zion cemetery.

Mary Carter, who had become a promising young woman of 19 became the wife of Jacob B. Hinshaw, son of Able and Nancy Hinshaw, on November 8, 1845. To them was born six sons and three daughters, namely: Meredith, Lucinda, Zimri, Uriah A., Jane, Stephen, Jacob Elsworth, William E., and Hannah, all of whom except Hannah grew to manhood and womanhood. Uncle Jacob and Aunt Polly, as they later became familiarly known, were frugal and highly respected citizens, making for themselves and each of their children good country homes. Their entire married life was spent in Washington township, Randolph County, Indiana. The wife passed to her reward on June 3, 1908, at the age of 82 years, her husband having preceeded her in 1901. They are buried in Mount Zion cemetery.

Eliza Carter was born in North Carolina, August 10, 1828. After growing to womanhood in the Mount Zion neighborhood, she was married to Abslom Hinshaw, brother of Jacob B., on Sept. 23, 1845, and to them was born five children, four of whom, Elza, Elwood, Columbus and Mary became heads of families. This couple spent their lives farming in Washington township, Randolph County, where through their frugality they had made themselves a good farm and a comfortable country home, besides helping each of their children in a substantial way. The father died at the old home just east of Snow Hill station on December 31, 1900 and the mother on March 17, 1904. They are also buried in Mount Zion cemetery.

Hannah M. Carter was born on the old Carter homestead near Mount Zion where she grew to womanhood and where she became acquainted with Thomas Murray to whom she was married Sept. 14, 1851. To this couple four children were born, one dying in infancy. Those reaching maturity were Thursa J., Charles H., and William E. The husband and father was a plasterer by trade and was a good soldier in the Union Army in the Civil War. The wife and mother bravely faced the responsibilities of the home and the rearing of the children in his absence. They never accumulated a great deal of this worlds goods but were rich in faith and good works. The wife and mother passed to her reward on August 14, 1903. After the death of his companion the father made his home with his son William E. and wife. He often said that there he was shown every kindness that true hearts and loving hands could bestow, but would add, "but I am lonesome and want to go home." This desire was realized on September 26, 1908. This couple had lived for many years in Huntington County, Indiana he died in the city of Huntington and was buried in the cemetery nearby.

Mariam, youngest daughter of Thomas and Marian Carter, was born on her father's farm near Mount Zion church, where she grew to womanhood and where she obtained a fair education. She was married to James Mullen, son of Thomas and Nancy Mullen, August 15, 1857. To them was born two daughters, namely: Caroline L. and Samantha, the latter dying in infancy. Before her marriage she taught school near where Snow Hill station now stands, and it has often been said of her that she was the best public reader in the community. She died September 17, 1862 and was buried at Mount Zion in sight of where she was born. The husband and father married the second time, raised a large family and died August 21, 1900.

Thomas Wesley, the only son of Thomas and Mariam Carter, was the youngest of the family and was bereft of a father at the age of two and of his mother before he was twelve. Thus he experienced the hardships of the orphan besides those incidental to pioneer life. His schooling was limited, but being of a studious disposition, he applied himself to such books as he could procure, especially the Bible, and thus early in life laid the foundation for the usual life to which he later attained. He was married at the age of 21 to Lydia Rhoades, daughter of Miles and Margaret Rhoades, on Oct. 19, 1856. They began housekeeping in a log house one-fourth mile west of old Snow Hill in Randolph county. In 1860 they moved to Howard county, Indiana. After remaining there fifteen years they returned to this county, locating in the same house which they formerly occupied. They became the parents of one son and eight daughters, namely: Emma J., Columbus R., Margaret M., Mariam E., Susanna B., Nora D., Martha R., Sarah I., and Lydia S. The wife and mother departed this life July 16, 1876. The daughter Margaret preceded her mother to the spirit world on September 15, 1875, and the babe Lydia S. followed on August 19, 1876.

A few weeks later the subject of this sketch met with an accident in which his right leg was broken which left him a cripple for life. He was subsequently married to Hannah Baldwin widow of Urban Baldwin, with whom he lived until the death angel claimed him on November 26, 1906. He was buried beside his first companion at Mount Zion. His widow departed this life a few years later and was laid beside her first husband in New Liberty cemetery.

This brief sketch reveals the fact that all the children of Thomas and Mariam Carter, together with all of their companions have ceased their activities and have passed to the great beyond, leaving the world richer and better by having lived in it.

History will further reveal the fact that it was during the lifetime of this generation that the unbroken forests gave place to fertile fields, the trails to public highways, the five steam railroads and the two electric railroads in this county were built; also the present court house, jail, county infirmary, and many of the substantial schools and church properties are the products of their labor left to our heritage.

Before writing this biographical sketches of the second generation of the Carter family, we wish to submit a few reminiscences and give some family statistics which we think will be of special interest in a work of this nature.

Referring to the school house east of Snow

Hill station where Aunt Mariam Carter (Mullen) taught school of which mention has been made, and where at least four members of the Carter family yet living, namely, Uriah Hinshaw, Enos Tisor, Elwood Hinshaw and Thursa Murray (Hatfield) went to school, we have this description of the house and its surroundings.

It stood on the southwest corner where the roads now cross just east of Snow Hill station. The building consisted of one room about 18x20 of round logs with no loft or ceiling, with a huge fire place occupying almost the entire end of the building, with split slab or puncheon seats with no backs, a rough plank laid on wood pins driven in the wall, for a writing desk; greased paper was at first used instead of glass windows. The pupils who were fortunate enough to be able to take writing would take their turn standing at the plank where the "school master" would give instructions in the use of quill pens. The house had but one door which swung on wooden hinges and was fastened when shut with a wooden latch, hence the old phrase "no one could get in if the latch string was not out." The building had a clap-board roof and a stick and clay chimney.

Uriah relates this incident. It was near the beginning of his first term, and his Aunt Mariam was the teacher. Shortly after "books" one morning a big wagon went along the road, or rather through the woods where the road now is, and as it was so unusual to see or hear a big wagon jolting over roots and stumps all present were anxious to see it. Uriah, being one of the little ones, ran to the window endeavoring to see out. The teacher said, "Ude, if you are bound to see that wagon you had better open the door and go out," whereupon he ran to the door lifted the latch and went out. We wonder what the excitement would have been could they have seen the automobiles, airplanes and steam cars that are almost constantly passing that spot now?

And this reminds us of an expression of Uncle Thomas Murray's; on one occasion he was watching an interurban car gliding along across the country, with "no pully, no pushy" and as it passed out of sight he turned to his son, Will, and said, "Will, if my father had seen that thing in his life time he would be running yet."

This incident was related by Henry Study at one of the reunions of the Carter family, several years ago. "Shortly after Thomas Carter moved to this country he turned his horses, one of which had a bell strapped around its neck, in the woods one evening to graze. In the morning he got up and hearing the bell a short distance from the house said to his wife that he would go and drive up the horses while she got breakfast. But the horses started in the opposite direction about the time he started after them, and while he was able to keep in hearing of the bell for some time he could neither overtake nor get around them. Without returning to the house for his hat or breakfast he continued his pursuit, frequently getting sight of the horses only to watch them increase their speed and get some distance ahead again. Thus the chase was continued until they came to the Ohio river where the horses were captured and returned.

No doubt the reader of the foregoing pages has observed that two of the Carter girls, Rachel the oldest, and Hannah, next to the youngest married Isaiah and Thomas Murray, father and son. This is rather an unusual occurrence, and the query has often been raised as to the relationship existing between the two families of children.

Two of the other girls, Mary and Eliza, married brothers, Jacob and Abslom Hinshaw. This, however, became rather a common occurrence in the Hinshaw families. Merideth and Zimri, sons of Jacob Hinshaw, married sisters and Elza and Elwood, sons of Abslom Hinshaw, married sisters. In the case of the two older Hinshaw brothers however there was this noticeable peculiarity. Notwithstanding the close relationship of brothers and brothers-in-law and the fact that they lived on adjoining farms for more than a half century, they were of opposite political beliefs. Jacob and his posterity were ardent Republicans, while Abslom and all his posterity were staunch Democrats. However they never allowed their political differences to mar their congenial and happy relationship.

The history of the Carter family for almost one hundred years furnishes proof of the fact that the family as a whole has not been a prolific family, as the following synopsis will show.

Posterity now living of each of the children of Thomas and Mariam Carter:

Rachel	by birth	1	by marriage	2
Elizabeth	by birth	45	by marriage	33
Mary	by birth	54	by marriage	36
Eliza	by birth	52	by marriage	27
Hannah	by birth	6	by marriage	2
Mariam	by birth	1	by marriage	1

Thos. W. by birth 46 by marriage 15

Religiously the family is Protestant. Nearly all of the adult members have been active church workers; the Friends, Methodist and Christian churches being the most numerous represented.

In the professional callings the family represented by one doctor, one lawyer, a banker, three nurses, one carpenter and contractor, three school teachers, seven preachers and one journalist.

We now proceed to give a brief biographical sketch of each of the grandchildren Thomas and Mariam Carter, especially of those who grew to manhood and womanhood.

In tracing this genealogy, however, we think it will cause less confusion in tracing families and finding names, to mention the names of each family in order, with respect to age, going back to the oldest, with the beginning of each succeeding generation. Thus Robert Murray, while not the first grandson or the first of the second generation was the son of the first oldest in the first generation.

Robert Murray, only son of Rachel and John Murray, of Indiana, on March 22, 1853. He was reared on the farm by his widowed mother, his father aving died when Robert was about seven years old. Robert received about the usual amount of schooling incidental to boys of his day, and was taught to work and depend on his own resources for support. He was married October , 1877 to Miss Annie J. Bunch, a popular young lady of Greensfork township. To this union was born two daughters and one son, namely: Gertrude F., Alverda C., and Guy B. Robert spent most of his life as a day laborer but by his frugality acquired for himself and family a comfortable home in Muncie, Indiana. He was an honest, hard working man, a kind husband and father. He died May 17, 1914 of heart failure while sitting in a chair at his home in Muncie, where his widow still resides. Death has since claimed his son and daughter, Gertrude. Guy died August 1, 1918, and Gertrude on February 14, 1915.

William R. Tisor, oldest son of John and Elizabeth Tisor, was born in Washington township, Randolph County, Indiana, December 10, 1844. He was the first grandchild and consequently the oldest of the second generation. He was reared on the farm and educated in the district schools. He taught in the country schools, before entering the Union Army February 8, 1865. He was a member of company

A-147 Indiana Volunteers and attained the rank of corporal. He was a member of the Masonic order for more than forty years. After returning from the army he studied medicine under Dr. Abner Kimble at Converse, Indiana, where he soon became a successful practitioner. While at Converse he became acquainted with Miss Elizabeth Dine, an accomplished daughter of Andrew J. Dine, to whom he was married on March 5, 1868. After practicing his profession a few years in Mier, Grant County, they moved to Washington township, Randolph County, where he continued his practice. There was born to this couple six children, two dying in infancy. Those living are Ollie Arcadia, Lertan A., Maud M., and Clyde. The wife and mother died December 8, 1894. Dr Tisor died December 19, 1907 while on a visit at his son Lert's home in Tyrone, Oklahoma. He was buried at Mount Zion.

Thomas Henry Tisor, the second son of John and Elizabeth Tisor, was born in Washington township, Randolph County, June 18, 1846. He received his education in the common schools of the county. He was always of a religious turn of mind, and was strictly honest and industrious, being successful in a financial way. He was married to Louisa Study on September 23, 1869. To this union was born one son, Enos, and one daughter, Eva. The wife and mother departed this life August 4, 1908. The son who had been an invalid for years, followed in a short time and the husband and father followed February 26, 1915.

Mary, the only daughter of John and Elizabeth Tisor, was born December 27, 1847. She was an exceptionally good girl and when she grew to mature age she was married to Henry Study on November 6, 1866. These people were very industrious and prosperous farmers and became the parents of five boys and two girls, namely: William Acey, Ernest T., Rosa, Olive, John Leonard, Ora Allen, and Henry Franklin. The daughters died when but children. In the death of the honored subject of this memoir, which occurred on May 2, 1903 there passed away another member of that little group of distinctively representative women of the Carter family. The husband lived a widower for nearly nine years and died at his home in Winchester on December 20, 1912.

Enos M. Tisor born July 14, 1852 in Washington township, became one of the best educated members of the family and was a successful teacher in the public schools of Randolph county for a number of years. He was first married to Elizabeth Platt, of Lynn, Indiana. To this union was born two girls, Lula Belle and Hattie. Lula died on June 17, 1873. Enos was subsequently married to Carrie B. Horn, a highly proficient school teacher and church worker, on May 13, 1880. To this union was born one son, Carl. This family is now living in Tuscon, Arizona.

Allen A., youngest son of John and Elizabeth Tisor, was born in Washington township, Randolph County, on October 21, 1854. He was a farmer by choice and when he grew to manhood he married Eunice Jones, December 12, 1875, who proved to be a typical farmer's wife. They were always happy and made their home congenial, not only for themselves and friends, but for their four daughters, namely: Clara V., Mary C., Rosa., and Nellie R. Allen died suddenly on the morning of September 14, 1920. The mother lives with their daughter Nellie, at Winchester, Indiana.

Merideth, the oldest son of Mary and Jacob Hinshaw, was born, lived and died in Washington township, near Snow Hill station. He was born September 13, 1846. He grew to be a strong man physically, intellectually, spiritually, and a man of considerable wealth. He taught school in his younger days but chose farming for his life's profession. He was a recognized minister of ability in the Society of Friends for a number of years. He wisely chose for his companion in life, Ellen Fudge to whom he was married on February 29, 1868, and with whom he lived happily until separated by death. This union was blessed with three sons, namely: David, A., Stephen Arla, and Otis W. The wife and mother survives at the old home, the husband and father having passed to his reward on June 12, 1921.

Lucinda, oldest daughter of Mary and Jacob Hinshaw, was born on the old home farm near Snow Hill station, September 2, 1847. Here she spent her girlhood days, in learning to spin, weave, sew, and knit, besides all the other arts that were so essential to a successful home maker and housekeeper in her day. She was married to Pleasant Harris of Union City, Indiana. To this union was born five sons and one daughter, namely: Charley, Minnie, Ora, Ernest, Edda, and Harry. After the death of this husband which occurred in 1887, Lucinda was married to John Fudge on February 24, 1892, with whom she lived until death claimed her on December 29, 1918. Her name will ever stand out as one of the central figures on the pages of this family history.

Zimri, brother to Meredith and Lucinda, was born April 21, 1850. He was one of Washington townships strong characters. He taught school when quite a young man but later devoted his energies to farming and stock raising, in which calling he was eminently successful. He chose for his companion in life, Esther Fudge, sister of Ellen and John Fudge. They were married on October 6, 1875. They were very prominent church workers and useful in the community activities. Having no children of their own they became foster parents to two girls and two boys, namely: Cora Beard, Lillie Fudge, Warren and Ernest Fudge. These children were not only loved and respected by Zimri and Esther, but are held in high esteem by all the members of the Carter family. Esther departed this life at their beautiful country home four miles north of Lynn, Indiana, on June 28, 1916, and Zimri lingered only a brief time until he was called to meet her in the great beyond.

Uriah A., third son of Jacob and Mary Hinshaw was born January 16, 1852, on the old home farm southeast of Snow Hill station. He was an active and industrious boy and grew to be one of Washington townships stalwarts. His early schooling was in a log school house that stood at the cross roads just east of Snow Hill. The most of his education however, was at old Vinegar Hill school house. Uriah became one of the successful, and we might say, one of the pioneer teachers of the county. After teaching a few terms of school he decided to turn his attention to farming exclusively in which calling he has been equally successful. He chose for his life partner Mary Elizabeth Baldwin. They were married April 4, 1874. To this union was born three sons and a daughter, namely: Leary Alberta, Wilmetta Ethel, Tully Ivanhoe and Orval Oakley. Death claimed this mother March 17, 1896.

Uriah's second marriage was to Charlotte Skiver Moore on June 28, 1900. This happy union was severed by the death of the wife on August 23, 1914. On January 15, 1916, he was again married, this time to Asenath C. Baldwin, widow of George Baldwin, with whom he is living happily in their cottage home in Rural, Indiana.

Jane, second daughter of Jacob and Mary Hinshaw, was a promising girl, and grew to noble womanhood and was married to Joseph Ruby of Winchester, in the year 1875. This union was of short duration. Death claimed her for its victim a few months later.

Stephen, another brother and noble character in this family, was of an athletic build and a tower intellectually. He was one of Randolph County's promising educators, but his career was cut short when he was stricken by typhoid fever in the fall of 1875. He was never married.

Jacob Elsworth, another worthy son of Jacob B. and Mary Hinshaw, is perhaps the best known throughout the country of any member of the family. He left the farm and commercial life when but a young man. After teaching school successfully for a number of years, he was elected County Surveyor for a number of terms, after which he engaged in the banking business in Winchester, where he is still employed and where he enjoys the confidence and respect of a large circle of friends and patrons. He is always interested in politics but is mostly interested in the welfare of his home and church. He chose for his companion in life Miss Blanché Hiatt, a highly accomplished young lady and successful school teacher of Winchester. They were married April 11, 1900. Until recently they owned and occupied one of the best homes in the county. Their home has been blessed with two children, namely: Ruth and Clyde M. Ruth was born

May 8, 1904 and Clyde M. on March 27, 1910.

William E., youngest son of the family of Jacob B. and Mary Hinshaw, was born at the old homestead near Snow Hill station on July 20, 1865. He, too, was a farmer, teacher, and preacher, and was not lacking in efficiency in either calling. He chose for his companion in life, Miss Thursa Oyler, an amiable school girl of this community. They were married February 24, 1887. They seemingly lived happy for a number of years when the wife died a tragic death on January 10, 1895. William lived alone until May 26, 1917, when he was united in marriage to Annie Freeman with whom he is still living in a nice home near Spokane, Washington. He has no children.

The following tribute in memory of Thirza Hinshaw was printed in the Winchester Herald shortly after her death.

IN MEMORY OF THIRZA HINSHAW

Another hand is beckoning us,
Another call is given;
And glows once more with angel's steps
The path that reaches heaven.

Our young, and gentle friend, whose smile
 Made brighter summer hours,
Amid the frosts of autumn time
 Has left us like the flowers.

No paling of the cheek of bloom
 Forewarned us of decay;
No shadow from the silent land
 Fell round our cousin's way.

The light of her young life went down,
 As sinks behind the hill
The glory of a setting star,
 Clear, suddenly and still.

As pure and sweet her fair brow seemed,
 Eternal as the sky;
And like the brook's low sound, her voice,
 A sound which could not die.

The blessing of her quiet life
 Fell on us like the dew;
Good thoughts where her footsteps pressed,
 Like fairy blossoms grew.

Sweet promptings into kindest deeds
 Were in her every look;
We read her face, as one who reads
 A true and holy book.

We miss her in the Sunday school,
And in her home so bright,
We pause beside her door to hear
Her kind and sweet "good night."

There seems a shadow on the day
Her smile no longer cheers;
A dimness on the stars of night,
Like eyes that look through tears.

Alone unto our Father's will
One thought hath reconciled;
That He whose love exceedeth ours
Hath taken home His child.

Fold her, O Father! in Thine arms,
And let her henceforth be
A messenger of love between
Our human hearts and Thee.

Still let her mild rebuking stand
Between us and the wrong;
And her dear memory strive to make
Our faith in goodness strong.

And grant that she whose death we mourn
The one we love so dear
May welcome to her heavenly home,
The ones she loved so, here.

The observant reader will no doubt note the fact that the subject of this sketch is the last or youngest of the second generation and that she has recently passed the half century mark. It is also a fact worthy of note that Elwood Hinshaw now the oldest of the second generation living is now past the three quarter mark and is so far as we know the oldest Hinshaw now living. Of the seventeen first cousins or second generation now living born into the family the average age is 63 years.

P. S. Since the above was written, Elwood Hinshaw has passed to the great beyond. What was said of him in regard to being the oldest member of the family can now be said of Uriah Hinshaw.

It will be noted, possible with a degree of sadness, that of 320 members of the Carter family now living that only four wear the name Carter, Columbus R., wife and daughter, a sister Belle.

Time, the great eraser, will soon have obliterated the family name from public print but we trust it will be indelibly stamped on living tablets in the temples of memory for generations to come, and that no descendent will ever do anything to dishonor the name Carter.

We have now come to the third generation and will endeavor to write a brief biographic sketch of each one that is grown or nearly so and give the names and dates of birth of the smaller children of this generation.

For the Carter Reunion

Here's to our reunion and here's to all therein.
To the speed of it and the need of it and the valiant souls that win.

To the hope it holds, and the gifts it grants, to visitors and to members,

May the good it does, to the ones we love be bright as glowing embers.

Here's to our glorious dinners spread on tables neath the trees.

Here's to the songs of our hearts wafted in and out with the breeze.

Praise to the Artist of Nature for the scenes all around and above us,

May they brighten the hearts of sad ones, and gladden the hearts that love us.

Here's to the grown up ones and the little ones
they cherish,
Here's to the living and the sleeping, who tho
brave must perish;
Here's to our golden locks and gray, with our stern life chorus ringing,
To the noise of us, and the joys of us, and the sighs beneath our singing.
Here's to the endless youths, the deaths and the reviving.
The soul of us, and the goal of us that keeps us ever striving.
Joy to the smiling children, and joy to the weary rover.
And the rest of us, and the best of us when our strivings are over.
Here's to our reunion, with all its countless changes,
The heart of it, the art of it, its long and tender glances.
With all its dear familiar ways that held us from the starting,
Long night to you, and good night to you when the hour is struck for parting.

One event worthy of more than passing notice in the Carter family and one that is always looked forward to with eager interest and looked back to with happy memories, is the annual reunion of the family in some grove or private family where the day is spent to the mutual good of all present and where tributes of love and respect are expressed for the departed. This reunion has been an annual occurrence since 1907 and the date long established is the second Wednesday in June. The family gratefully acknowledges their indebtedness and gratitude to Emma J. Parker for the inauguration of this happy event .

That the young and future generations may know the origin of this family reunion and strive to perpetuate and sanctify it to their mutual good, we here submit the secretary's report of the first meetings.

"The first meeting of the descendents of Thomas and Mariam Carter was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Parker in Snow Hill, Indiana, October 1, 1907, with eighty members present. The forenoon was spent in renewing old relationships and acquaintances and making new ones, and the noon hour in enjoying a most bounteous dinner. If any feeling of envy or jealousy had ever existed it was completely forgotten and if any friendships had been forgotten they were completely restored, and had the meeting then adjourned it would have been of great value to all members present. At one o'clock the meeting was called to order and after scripture reading and prayer by Meredith Hinshaw, temporary organization was effected with Dr. William R. Tisor, president; Troy A. Wilmore, Sec'y. Pro. Tem. Permanent officers for the ensuing year were then elected as follows: Columbus R. Carter, president; Columbus Hinshaw, vice president; Dr. O. W. Hinshaw, secretary-treasurer; Ora A. Study, corresponding secretary. A committee on arrangements was appointed by the chair as follows: Columbus Hinshaw, Thomas Henry Tisor, Lucinda Fudge, Uriah Hinshaw and Ora A. Study.

Miscellaneous talks were given by Henry Tisor and others on family fraternity and loyalty to the Great Father of us all.

A collection of four dollars was taken to defray expenses for the coming year, after which the meeting adjourned.

During all the years that have intervened since the organization of this reunion, a large per cent of the family have assembled each recurring date and, whether favored by special providence or otherwise, the reunion has never fallen on a bad day. Among the many who have never missed a meeting is the President, who is usually the first on the ground and the last one to leave.
